Dominik Slezak

Co-founder and chief scientist at Infobright, Dominik received his PhD in Computer Science in 2002 from Warsaw University, Poland. He has pursued academic collaborations with Warsaw University, University of Regina, and Polish-Japanese Institute of Information Technology. He is a chair of several international scientific conferences, an editorial board member for several international scientific journals, an invited speaker at a number of universities and conferences worldwide. His research interests are in databases, data warehouses, data mining and soft computing. He has published over 80 research articles for books, journals, and conference proceedings.